Coopersville Water Distribution System

In 1978, Coopersville completed construction of a water main that connected to the Grand Rapids system. The resulting water distribution system consists of over 12 miles of water main, two 250,000 gallon elevated storage tanks, and a supply main with a metering and booster station in Allendale. The station regulates the amount of water distributed to Coopersville to allow the elevated storage tanks to fill and empty over their normal operating range. The booster pumps are designed to maintain adequate pressure for transmission of water from the Grand Rapids main to the City of Coopersville during periods when the Grand Rapids booster station is not operating. Significant unused capacity is available within the City's water system.

Over the last decade, Coopersville water system has been extended so that it services 99% of the residential and commercial facilities and upgraded to eliminate smaller water mains.

back to top

Coopersville Sanitary Sewer System

The original vitrified clay sewer system was constructed in 1903. This system served the downtown area.

The next major construction occurred during the 1930's. During this time, extensions were constructed downtown, and a treatment plant was constructed on Main Street.

The sanitary sewer system and treatment facility were completely renovated in the early 1970's. A sanitary sewer trunk line was constructed from the lift station near I-96. A new treatment facility was constructed south of the expressway, with four wastewater lagoons.

In 1989, lagoon 1 was split into two mixing aerated lagoons utilizing floating aspirator type aerators. Chemical addition was provided in lagoons 3 and 4. The bottom two feet of each lagoon is designed for storage of chemically precipitated sludge. A building for storage and feed equipment was erected. Lagoon 2 is not involved in daily operations, but is available for emergency storage.

Upgrades are currently underway to replace the force main from Pin Oak to the Wastewater Treatment Plant.
